[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]
DATES TO JUNE 26.
(Congressional)
WASHINGTON, June 25.—In the Senate Mr. Stewart introduced a bill to enable settlers and others to take up the title for the sale and occupation of mineral lands. Laid over and specially made the order of the day.
In Senate adjourned at 2 of the day, while establishing commercial railways in the District of Columbia. Mr. Morrill called up the bill to amend the existing system of internal revenue. Mr. Sherman addressed the Senate in favor of the bill, and moved to amend the bill by striking out the clause which exempts from taxation the circulation of banks. Mr. Morrill opposed the amendment, and Mr. Sherman replied. Mr. Conness addressed the Senate in favor of the amendment, and Mr. Morrill replied. Mr. Sherman

The Daily Oregonian.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

MONDAY MORNING JULY 2 1866

The Amendment

The most important question that will be brought before the Legislature of Oregon at the coming session will be on the ratification of the Reconstruction Amendment to the Constitution of the United States We believe that the Union majority in our Legislature will not hesitate to ratify this amendment There can be no doubt that a majority of the people of this State desire the amendment to be incorporated into the Constitution. The Union press of the State unanimously support it. A full month before our late election the report of the Reconstruction Committee was telegraphed here and made known all over the State, so that it cannot be said that the Legislature was elected without any reference to the amendment It is true that the first report of the Committee underwent some changes before it was finally adopted by Congress but these alterations were for the better, as they resulted in the elimination from the amendment of every feature to which any Union man could possibly object The Union party of Oregon in the late contest advocated substantially the same principles of restoration as are embodied in the proposed constitutional amendment. In every State where an election is pending the Union party pronounces for ratification. In every State where Unionists elect a majority of the Legislature, the amendment will be adopted. The Union journals of the East which have hitherto sustained Mr. Johnson's plan for want of a better one, now pronounce in favor of the settlement of the whole question on the very liberal terms set forth in the proposed amendment to the Constitution. All classes of Union men at the East hail the measure with satisfaction, as constituting a common ground upon which the Union party of the country can stand together and maintain control of the Government." A measure which provides for the restoration of the revolted States to their old position in the Union on terms so safe so moderate and so practicable, will unquestionably receive the support of every Union Senator and Representative in the Legislature of Oregon.

What the War was all About.

The Copperhead newspapers have lately been laboring with might and main to settle satisfactorily the question, "What was the war about?" The results of the inquiry are in some cases startling, in others merely curious, but the variety is infinite. One arrives at the conclusion that the only thing in issue was "Constitutional liberty." Another says "State Rights." A third pronounces for "Rights of private property." Still another says the "Right of Secession." And so they go on, ad infinitum, doctors disagreeing and proving each other charlatans and asses. The confusion is great but not without its instructive side. It is clear from the multitude of opinions that the war about something.

It has been reserved, however, to the erudite doctor of the Review, to settle at once and forever the vexed question with a single dash of the pen. He says:

Their (the seceding States) only aim and object was to deprive us of the land that belonged, up to that time, to the Confederation of States. * * * * We fought for four years to get control of lands. We succeeded—

It was about some land! We thank thee, Toney! We thank all concerned in the birth that thou wert born. We thank the spoon victuals upon which thy infancy fed. We thank the winds and the colics which spared thy tender years. We thank the birchen rod which was not spared and thou spoilt, in thy raising up. We thank the subtle essences which did conspire and conglomerate to make thy brain. We thank the beefsteaks, yea, and the cabbage, which thou fast plighted upon thy maturer stomach and, which, parting with their fructifying qualities, have lent themselves to thy physical man so that it hath sustained such a brain, and to thy brain that it hath conceived and uttered this proposition. We thank thy types and thy press and thy paper and thy cunning fingers which did manipulate all and singular of them so that thy profound sapience hath been wafted all about, even as the thistle-down doth fly to North and South, and to East and West. Else had newspaperdom, and stump-speakerdom, and political pothousedom dwelt and sat in the darkness of the wrangle which the doctors were but wrangling into darkness more profound than that which enveloped the mental vision of the lost spirits when they reasoned upon

> Providence, foreknowledge, will and fate,
> Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute,
> And found no end in wandering mazes lost.

Toney, thou shalt live—live in history—when the memory of those who gave thee birth, of thy spoon victuals, of thy share of wind and colic, of thy smartings under the birchen rod, of thy brain and of thy beefsteaks and thy cabbage, of thy types and press and paper and the cunning fingers, all, all shall be forgot, thou; Toney, shalt sit on memory's throne as brilliant a star of the Past as—as—Randolph's mackerel by moonlight. Toney, we have said it—thou shalt live.

A SPECIMEN DEMOCRAT AND A SUPPORTER OF "MY POLICY."—A few weeks ago Milligan, Bowles and Horsey, the Indiana conspirators, were released from imprisonment. They were arrested in 1863 for a charming little scheme to murder Gov Morton of Indiana and revolutionize the State. The proof of their guilt was overwhelming, and their sentence was death, which was commuted to imprisonment for life. At length they were released on the ground that the military tribunal by which they were tried was unconstitutional Milligan, a short time after his release, delivered a lengthy speech at Bluffton, Indiana, wherein among many gems of the same kind, the following appears:

> God is just; although to us, who do not understand his providences, that justice sometimes seems tardy. I never was prone to believe in the frequent recurrence of special providences, but such instances are distinctly seen in the cases of three of the greatest sinners against God's righteous will—Lincoln, Brough and Morton

One has been summoned to the bar of retributive justice with his sins unrepented of Another, covered all over with the mildew of debauchery and wrapped in the exhalations from which buzzards would turn their flesh of fended noses, carried to the grave the impress of infamy; while there yet remains one of the Godless trio, but the plague is on its westward march its limbs are smote with the blood of crime, and tremble under their load of corruption But I pray that he may live long to realize to this world rather than in the next, that God is just.

It is needless to say that this ghoulish wretch is a most devoted Democrat. It is needless also to observe that in common with all his kind, he supports the "policy" of President Johnson.

Somebody has sent by letter from Tennessee to a Boston paper a statement to the effect that Andrew Johnson while stumping that State in 1860 for John C. Breckinridge, in answer to a question, at one of his meetings, said "Yes, I think the election of Mr. Lincoln as a sectional candidate will be a just cause for separation."

This is a remarkable statement but not harder of belief than his present language and conduct would have been a little over a year ago.

The San Francisco Examiner indignantly denies that the rebels were ever thrashed. It won't be long till the copperhead papers will deny that the South ever rebelled, and not much longer till they will swear you that the Southern troops were called out to put down an insurrection of Yankee Doodle fanatics and that the insurrection ended with the death, by a patriot bullet, of the insurgent leader—Lincoln.

FROM VICTORIA.

From our files of Victoria papers to the 27th, we clip the following

NEW STEAMER FROM PUGET SOUND

A new stern wheel steamer built for the service of the Collins Overland Telegraph Company, to ply on the rivers and inlets of the coast of British Columbia, arrived here yesterday afternoon from Port Ludlow, W T. to be completed in her fittings and arrangements Her dimensions are length, 150 feet breadth of beam, 34 feet 4 feet 8 inches depth of hold She is built in a very strong and substantial manner, and is calculate I will adapted for the work for which she is intended Capt Coffin late of the steamer Union, brought her over to this port and will command her

A BAD ACCIDENT

A little boy, son of Mr A Beck, residing on Douglas street, met with a sad accident yesterday He had climbed a fence and in descending, fell upon a rose cut near, one of the teeth of which entered and utterly destroyed the sight of one eye Dr Avelt was called to relieve the distress of the little sufferer

THE TELEGRAPH CABLE NEARLY BURNT

One day last week the operator found the electric current of the cable defective, and suspecting something wrong dispatched his messenger to examine the shore end of the marine cable On arriving at Telegraph Bay the messenger found that some one had set fire to the camp at San Juan, and lighted a large fire over the cable. The fire was immediately extinguished, and it was discovered that the cable underneath was just saved from being melted This is the third time since it has been laid that a similar mishap has been prevented, and precautions were taken to prevent its recurrence

SHUSWAP LAKE SILVER

Most flattering news was yesterday received of the assay of one hundred pounds of silver ore sent to San Francisco on the last steamer The result showed an average assay of $1600 of silver to the ton and $350 of gold Some of the specimens assayed as high as $2500 to the ton. These lands from which the specimens were taken belong to the Shuswap and British Columbia Silver Mining Company, with a capital of $500 000, who have secured a grant of sixty square miles for mining purposes

FROM CARIBOO.

The Colonist and Chronicle of the 27th, contains the following

ARRIVAL OF TREASURE

Messrs Ormandy and Carney, messengers of the Bank of British of Columbia, arrived from Williams' Creek last evening with $100 000 in treasure Leaving Dr the 16th inst, and report matters as presenting a very promising appearance At Queenstreet the people were found in a state of excitement concerning the new diggings on Canyon Creek, of which the Sentinel says "We are informed that Messrs. Hickson, Mulcaster & Co, who went on the exploring expedition lately from Quesnelmouth, had returned and report favorably of the diggings They had found the Chinese company there and were in search of. The Chinaman had winged dammed one of the forks of the creek, but from the high state of the water, were unable to work. The explorers prospected a bench 15 feet above the level of the creek, and found prospects to pay at least $10 a day. They grounded about off a little, but it being prospected with tools, was unable to do much. They brought in $75 of the dust obtained from the ground sluice It is very bright looking dust, and more or less mixed with quartz, indicating the existence of extensive quartz leads in the vicinity; they also brought in a piece of quartz about eight inches square, which was literally spotted with gold. Our informant states that it was the richest quartz specimen he has seen in the country, The company are making preparations to return, being well satisfied with the country

FRASER'S CANON.

Advices say company are pushing sluicing they have laid 240 feet of flume, and expect to get through in a couple of weeks; 20 men are at work Jenkins Company have run a tunnel 1500 feet to tap the diggings and sink a shaft 70 feet, and are now putting up a wheel and hoisting gear, the ground will pay about an ounce a day to the hand will be washing during the present week American company sunk a shaft 52 feet and got a prospect of $3 to the pan, are now putting up a wheel to pump and hoist with. Union Company sluicing a new shaft. Emery Company (Inman) struck pay last February and have been at work ever since; the channel pays for a width of about 25 feet about an ounce a day to the hand North and South Water Company, on the flat opposite the Emery Company, have just commenced sluicing

HIGGINS CREEK

We understand the No'er-Do-Well Company have been taking out good pay during the past week, their diggings will average 25 ounces a day. The Cascade Company have started to run a tunnel, the prospects in their shaft having proved satisfactory. It is expected that several new strikes will be made during the present week

MARKETS

During the present week over 150 pack animals have arrived with assorted cargoes of merchandise, which has had the effect of lowering prices from former quotations Flour is now selling at 22 cts to 25 Pc; bacon 22, sugar 22 brandy 30; candles 75, coffee $1, tobacco $2@4, nails 30 gum boots $15 $18@20

FROM BIG BEND

The following Big Bend intelligence is furnished by the special correspondent of the Colonist and Chronicle of the 27th. The letter is dated Seymour, June 20th

ARRIVAL OF THE "MARTEN"—MAN DROWNED

The steamer Marten has just arrived with a full freight of pork animals and milch cows for the miles A fitting named Hoy, in attempting to pass around a raft of hay fell over board nine miles from here, and although a boat was immediately lowered and every exertion made to save him, he was drowned He was not three minutes above water The body has not been recovered

THE STEAMER "FORTY NINE"

The Early Bird has again arrived, bringing a few tons of freight and three head of cattle The steamer was lying at Laporte, said entire cargo of flour bacon vegetables, etc., was offered at 25 cts per pound all round, in order to pay the freight

DISSATISFACTION AMONG THE MINERS

Pack trains and beef cattle have got safely across the divide, and our route is at last open From Moore, Lenihan and Stewart, who have just arrived, I learn that great dissatisfaction prevails on the creeks because of Judge O'Reilly compelling miners to pay fees of $2 50 for getting their claims laid over with them came to Seymour for supplies Considering that the Government has got to build a road to open the route and that they have to pay supplies sent into the Big Bend, it does seem a very bad policy to take advantage of the absolute necessities of those very hard working and very poor men who have no alternative but to have their claims, or save, or pay the fee

FULTON CREEK

H Bells writes from French Creek June 16th "I have only time to drop you a line There is no news of any consequence six companies are washing out more or less gold, viz Discovery Extraction Orchel Half Breed Stores, and Shop Bally s

I saw to-day several boys from McCulloch creek They told me that people are now having the creek reinsured. I did not ascertain the cause of the stampede [He has been misinformed—Our Chronicle.] I forgot to mention that Shop Bally picked up, during the week, a nugget weighing $25

FROM PUGET SOUND

We find the following news items in the Puget Sound Weekly of June 20th

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

[illegible]

WASHINGTON, May 31 1866

Senator Williams early yesterday introduced an important bill into the Senate and as it received but little notice I will give its provisions. It is a bill giving lands to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Salt Lake City to the Colorado river. This is the title of the bill but it will more properly read to construct a monument which Mr Williams will offer to erect as will provide that the work shall be called a levee at the Colorado river. The first section names the corporators. The names from Oregon are W S Ladd, R R Thompson and Reed G C Ainsworth D J Bradford Geo L Curry H W Corbett Harry Lane J C H Lewis H L Kendrick and H L Stanton.

Section two gives every alternate section not containing gold or silver to the company to the amount of 20 alternate sections per mile on a territory and ten in a state. Where the gold and silver section contains rather small belongings to the company. The bill is a very long one and drawn up with great care but I have given the most important points.

The Senate Republicans have done very much with the reconstruction amendment from the House instead of detailing the debate in the Senate the Republican Senators went into caucus and determined among themselves what they would do. The general feeling here is that it is a very marked improvement upon the House amendment and that it was very wise to go into caucus.

President is not a little staggered by this unanimity among Republicans in Congress. His whole power as President has been used to break down the Republicans from their position and he has utterly failed. They agree upon a very fair measure. Only two or three weak (or weakened) men stand out. Doolittle, Cowan, Norton and Dixon are with the Opposition as I do what the President learns. But everybody knows that they are bought up and they have lost all influence with the people. Now it remains to be seen if the President can succeed any better with the people. I do not believe he can. Already the Democrats are becoming dissatisfied with his replies to appointments. Democrats to office and they are not going to act harmoniously with him although he makes no impression that far upon the rank and file of the people though a few office holders have nominally gone over to him.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill regulating the bounties given to soldiers and proposing to do so, which creates a good deal of comment. It was passed under the pressure of the previous question, with no opportunity to debate the merits of the proposition. The Treasury Department is opposed to the scheme for it will add two hundred millions to the national debt. The members from the older states are opposed to it for the reason that it does not benefit them. Yet such was the pressure that only two members of the House ventured upon voting against the bill, and they were copperheads. Banks asked to check a vital question. (It was all he could do under the previous question) which showed that the Banks regarded the measure as nearly worthless but he did not venture upon voting against it. The part of the bill most objectionable was introduced by Mr Schenck of Ohio, and his object was to outlaw the expenditures under the bill. It provides that sold ers who have been paid bounties by State or local organizations shall receive nothing under this act, so that the soldiers of Massachusetts (for instance,) claim no money under this act because that State was generous enough to pay bounties to her soldiers but that State is taxed to pay bounties to soldiers from Ohio and Indiana, which States were too economical or poor to take care of their volunteers. This is manifestly unjust and the Senate will amend the measure in this respect, if it does not reject it altogether.

The tax bill has consumed an enormous amount of time in the House—over three weeks. It is not much changed at last. For the most part the committee has had its own way but occasionally it has been beaten on minor points. The California members did their duty on the mines question, but did not succeed in reducing the tax fixed by the committee. Mr Conness (who is very well posted on the subject) may say something upon it when it comes up in the Senate.

The Colorado veto message has not yet been taken up in the Senate nor will it be for some time, as I hear. Senator Wade begins to have a me hope that he may yet carry through the bill over the veto, but I think he is mistaken. The suffrage question will prevent a number of radicals in the Senate and House from voting for the bill. An amusing story is "going the rounds" about the conduct of the President in this Colorado business and I must quote it here.

A good joke is told of the President in connection with the Colorado Senators and I can discredit it I believe it genuine. When these gentlemen first arrived here they called up on A J in company with a senatorial friend and his congenial soul as opposites—ready not only to listen, but to advise. He regretted that he could not by proclamation admit the State at once, as there was some difficulty growing out of the failure to comply with the provisions of the enabling act at an early day of the session he referred them to Congress expressing the belief that they would be speedily admitted. A few evenings ago, during a business interview the Senator in question, who notwithstanding he is a Radical, still preserves friendly relations with the President, at the other end of the Avenue, quietly remarked to the President. You did not allow our good Colorado friends to come in, as you promised us some time ago. I am very much afraid their politics do not suit you just now at which the President who by this time should be accustomed to such reminders, could scarcely maintain his composure, but he managed to observe in his senatorial friend, Well, all I have to say is that I have changed my mind [illegible]

Thad Stevens threw a bomb shell into the House the other day by moving to take from Secretary McCulloch the power to appoint a Special Tax Commissioner. It is not that he objected to the Commissioner, but he desired to strike a blow at the Secretary. He said so in so many words. Let me quote from the Globe for his speech

I am done for my part, with giving any patronage to the Secretary of the Treasury where it can be avoided. He has already said that he will appoint no one to office unless he sustains the policy of the President. He has the morning distinctly we are informed a member of this House who called upon him in regard to an appointment. He asked the member if the applicant sustained the policy of the President, and when the member declined to tell him he said I can appoint and will appoint no man who does not support the President. And referring to an appointee Senator from that region, the Secretary said, I consult him when I make appointments, and I will appoint nobody who is not recommended by him."

Now it is time for this House to let the people of the country know whether these officers are to be sacrificed to this determination of the subordinates of the President if we do not stand by them they will not stand by us and they ought not to do so, it is time we spoke distinctly about these things. If I am mistaken in office I will go further and say that I have already ascertained that four subordinates of the President have made the same declaration. And if I was a little younger, and I shall be in a week I think I would let these officers know that if one is a genuine augment of the nation both for whom men who are guilty of malpractices in office can be brought and I their case presentable I to another tribunal which would try them.

Sir we are recreant to our own interests we are recreant to our own dignity, we are recreant to all the interests of the country if we do not stand by those who stand by us. With any consent on my part no patronage of all the patronage power I may man to be abused, avowedly and well. It is time that we spoke aloud and that we let our friends in the country that they are in danger that they shall not be sacrificed because they stand by Congress that they shall not be destroyed because they are not the tools of a recreant President. I say that I have said nothing of any other that this day they shall they has been avowed by the Secretary of the Treasury that he will be heard distinctly that in the State I represent I will consult no one in addition to appointments but a recreant, apostate Senator, who has betrayed his party and his country.

Mr Spaulding I wish to ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania whether he heard us in urging this amendment

Mr Stevens I am

Mr Spaulding What I seriously oppose it

To accounting for the final action of the House let me say that Mr Spaulding is one of the most rational of the Radicals and Mr Morrill is an able man, the latter has stood by Stevens upon this question. He and I among other things;

I suppose Mr Chairman that the destitution from the extreme Southern portions of New York [illegible] that those little [illegible] entirely with their marks against the [illegible] I am not to be supposed in this section but that any of them will be appointed to this position I am not aware. I [illegible] the President has a right [illegible] for the Senate to confirm [illegible] in favor of people or influences in all their relations—tax collectors, surveyors, assessors that I do not object to the same but I am still free to say that I do not approve of all of them to the Secretary of the Treasury nor do I approve of the whole system which he made some of the appointments. I think it was a little ill advised for the head of the Treasury not to be [illegible] the same to Stanton as he is to the President.
